History of Minidoka Incarceration Camp:

The Minidoka War Relocation Center was in operation from 1942-1945 and was one of ten concentration camps at which Japanese Americans, both citizens and resident aliens, were incarcerated during World War II. Almost 13,000 people, predominantly from Oregon, Washington, and Alaska, had to leave their homes and were sent to Minidoka, located near Twin Falls, Idaho.

The site was listed on the National Register of Historic Places on July 10, 1979. In 2001, a presidential proclamation established the 72-acre Minidoka Internment National Monument in order to preserve and protect the legacy of this unique and irreplaceable historical resource. In 2008, President George W. Bush changed the status of the U.S. National Monument to Minidoka National Historical Site.

The Minidoka Pilgrimage:

The first Minidoka Pilgrimage took place in 2003. The upcoming pilgrimage from July 5-8, 2018 former incarcerated, their families, and friends will make a pilgrimage - from Seattle, Portland, and across the nation - to the former Minidoka Concentration Camp in Idaho. The Minidoka Pilgrimage provides an opportunity to share memories, ask questions, and learn more about the Minidoka experience. We have averaged more than 100 attendees each year, with attendance and interest increasing as the Minidoka National Historic Site is developed.

The Minidoka Pilgrimage Planning Committee:

The Planning Committee consists of volunteers who organize the annual pilgrimage. Our committee is diverse and includes former incarcerated, people whose family has been incarcerated, former scholarship recipients and other interested individuals. Primary committee work begins in the fall and concludes with the pilgrimage in June. An annual fundraiser in February, as well as other community outreach events are also included as committee work.
